ALABAMA COLLEGE

Looking closely at the Great Seal of Alabama College, a symbol of a burning lamp is found. Though of "still life," it is constantly burning. This may be visualized as being synonymous with the objectives of Alabama College—enlightenment. Foremost of these objectives is the training of the students' minds for specialized fields or vocations. But to be well-rounded citizens, more than the students' intellects must be stimulated. As a cultural aspect, Alabama College sponsors lectures and performers who share the richness of their talents with the students. Keeping physically able to utilize this knowledge naturally falls in line as being the next important step in an A. C. education. Year-round physical development programs are maintained on the campus for a variety of sports.

The extracurricular activities of various groups and organizations are another step of promoting the social life of a student. Acquaintances materialize out of these functions to become lifelong friendships.

Religious training is included in the curriculum for a well-rounded education. Six churches are available for the utilization of the students of Alabama College.

The following pages picture our home for the school year. Here, in these buildings we experience joy, excitement, friendships, love, laughter, sometimes disappointment, and, yes, even a little homesickness. In this book we want to give you a picture of school life at A. C. from the entrance of a timid Freshman to his graduation as a dignified Senior. Though the students enter Alabama College as eager boys and girls, they leave four years later as ENLIGHTENED men and women.

Students spend many hours in the Edward Houston Wills Library.

Stately Reynolds Hall is the center of student activities. It houses lounges, parlors, publications offices, WRSD, and the popular Tea House.

Sounds of music float across campus all day as aspiring musicians practice in Calkins Hall, the music building.

Main Hall, the Freshman girls' dormitory, is the largest

The President

Dr. Phillips and his fine family.

Few other institutions are so fortunate in having as President a man of Dr. Phillips' intellectual interests. He is both a builder and administrator. To know him is to understand why our school has moved forward with no backward glances. Dr. Phillips was educated at Wake Forest College, B.S., M.A., Sc.D., and the University of Virginia, Ph.D. His influence has extended far from our A. C. Campus. Throughout the country he is known as a teacher and lecturer.

Dr. Phillips is not only a worker, but is an individual personality. His interest in people is evident by his sense of humor, his kindliness, and his eagerness to help. We the students believe that our contact with him today will make us better men and women of tomorrow.

DR. HOWARD M. PHILLIPS

Dean M. L. Orr

Dr. Orr is well-qualified for his position as Dean of Alabama College. He received the Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Alabama; his Master of Arts degree and the Ph.D. from Peabody College. During the summer, this versatile man may be found directing the summer school.

Alabama College is indeed fortunate to have such a wonderful person as Dean Orr to serve in one of its primary official capacities. As the name Dean Orr is heard throughout the halls of A.C., students recall the many times that this congenial and well-loved person has helped them to solve their many problems; or they may even recall the time that he gave them that bit of good sound advice. Although he stays quite busy with his many administrative duties, Dean Orr always has a few moments to spare when one of his "children" comes to pay him a visit.

The end of this school year will be the occasion of Dean Orr's retirement from his position, but we know that his interest in Alabama College will never fail. Because of his contribution to education here and throughout the state, Dean M. L. Orr will remain a shining example to those who follow him.

MISS IVA BRANNON GIBSON

Dean of Students

One of the most admired and respected persons on our campus is Dean Gibson. With her friendly and gracious personality, she is an inspiration to all those who come in contact with her. She is constantly working toward improving the environmental surroundings of A. C. students. Dean Gibson is interested in student activities and improvements on all phases of college life, so that students at Alabama College are able to realize a much more abundant and worth-while stay at this institution of higher learning.

One of the busiest persons on campus, Dean Gibson may be found counseling with students, searching for new activities, serving on various committees, or taking part in the social events. She endears herself to each student by her friendliness, helpfulness, and graciousness.

JOHN B. WALTERS

Acting Dean of Men Students

Although he has been a resident of Montevallo and a professor at A. C. for just a little more than two years, Dean Walters has already won the love and respect of each of us. This outstanding leader and scholar is really quite a remarkable person. In addition to his duties as Dean of Men Students, Dr. Walters also serves as chairman of the Social Science Division here at Alabama College.

As teacher and professor, Dr. Walters fills his classes with a great deal of wit and personality, along with his abundance of knowledge.

Taking all of his fine qualities and merits into consideration, A. C. is very fortunate to have a person such as Dr. Walters to grace its campus and classrooms.

LEE A. BARCLAY

Business Manager

The job of Business Manager of Alabama College is by no means an easy one. It demands a very capable and responsible person to maintain its functions.

At the present time Mr. Lee A. Barclay holds this important office here on our campus. A very cordial and friendly person, he is always willing to listen to the financial problems of A. C. students, and in turn, is always ready to offer a bit of advice on the issues concerned. In addition to his duties as Business Manager, Mr. Barclay is also teaching a class in public finance.

Alabama College is quite fortunate in having Mr. Barclay as a member of its staff, for he is a remarkable person and contributes a great deal to the welfare of our school.

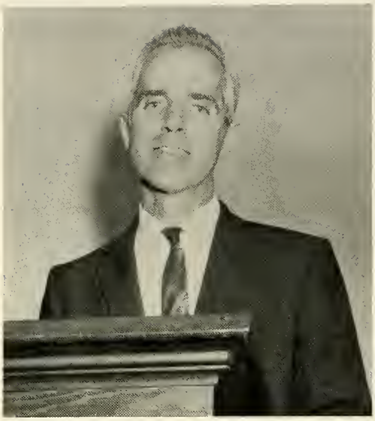
The Dedication



This year the Senior Class chose the person to whom the 1959 MONTAGE was dedicated. The dedication went to one who has devoted many years of service to Alabama College and who is loved and respected by faculty and students alike.

For thirteen years he has taught in the Social Science Department, and has the rank of Assistant Professor. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, he is also affiliated with Southern Economic Association and the American Association of University Professors.

Mr. Murray C. Flynn is a brilliant and inspiring teacher —one who stimulates intellectual curiosity in his students. He is an humble man, quiet and modest, but a true scholar devoted to imparting human knowledge. This dedication is a recognition of his devotion to students, to scholarship, and to Alabama College.

To a truly deserving person, the 1959 MONTAGE is dedicated—Mr. Murray C. Flynn.

In Memoriam

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time;

"Footprints, that perhaps another,
Sailing o'er life's solemn main,
A forlorn and shipwrecked brother,
Seeing, shall take heart again."

DR. MARGARET McCALL

The words of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow must have been the philosophy of these people. Truly they left "footprints on the sands of time." Their friends have a treasury of memories from association with them. Alabama College is richer for having these people as members of its staff and student body.

Their influence and their memories will be a cherished possession. They will be long remembered for their unselfish service while affiliated with the College.

The lives of these people will be an inspiration to those who follow in their footsteps, that they too may be filled with an unselfish devotion to whatever course they pursue.

MRS. DOROTHY ROHRER

In the program of enlightenment, Alabama College's foremost objective is the training of the students' minds in the liberal arts and in specialized fields. Enlightenment comes as the direct result of intellectual stimulation. Interest in one or more phases of human living and the problems it presents is the predecessor of enlightened people. With the advent of the Space Age, it has become increasingly important that education in all fields rise to meet the challenge presented to each person living in this new era. Education has become interested in a more detailed and scientific presentation of material for improvement of human life.

Recognizing the role it plays in the development of the mind to adapt to this scientific era, Alabama College offers a comprehensive curriculum. To meet the varied needs of its students, the college has developed thorough-going courses in the arts and sciences. Degrees may be obtained in one of the departments or in the School of Music. A Master's Degree is offered for graduate study in education as well as certain areas not connected with teacher training. College-operated laboratory schools are provided for student teachers to gain valuable teaching experience.

However, the curriculum would be ineffective without the erudite faculty and administration. Because of their wide range of knowledge and experience, this faculty can more ably prepare the student for life after college.

Boys and girls indicate their willingness to learn by entering Alabama College. By taking advantage of its educational program, they emerge as enlightened men and women.

Art

Under the leadership of Mr. David Huntley, the Alabama College Art Department is constantly working toward the provision of a liberal arts background for the individual student, a background that includes an awareness and an understanding of art and its place in our human society.

For art majors, the department offers the opportunity to concentrate on one of the major fields of art; namely—painting, art history, commercial art and design, ceramics or art education.

MR. DAVID C. HUNTLEY
Associate Professor and Chairman

MRS. VIRGINIA BARNES
Associate Professor

Our college community is closely related to our own art department through such cultural aspects and opportunities as exhibitions of art works, numerous films and lectures on art, and art education workshops.

Mr. Huntley, head of the art department, is ably assisted by Miss Martha Allen and Mrs. Virginia Barnes. This well-known trio, known throughout our campus for their interesting classes, have made many worthwhile contributions to our society, as well as to Alabama College students.

Biology

DR. PAUL C. BAILEY
Professor and Chairman

An outstanding department on our campus is the Biology Department. This department is useful to every student on campus because it offers information concerning the science of everyday life. Various subjects are taught which lead to specialized training in public health work, medical or laboratory technology, and the teaching of sciences in high school. The courses taught in the department include embryology, genetics, anatomy, field biology, physiology, bacteriology, and histology. Also there are various introductory courses opened to non-majors.

In the department very excellent and experienced teachers are to be found in Dr. Paul C. Bailey, Professor and Chairman of the Department; Dr. Gideon E. Nelson, Associate Professor; and Dr. David James Cotter, Assistant Professor.

The adequate laboratory facilities and classrooms together with the fine teaching staff and wide range of essential subjects, all make substantial contributions to the development of experienced students, who, in turn, leave Alabama College with an abundance of knowledge and a ready will to meet the many opportunities that lie in the pathways which they are soon to travel.

Business

SARA MORGAN
Associate Professor

Business Administration is the curriculum of a number of students at Alabama College.

The total enrollment in this department has reached an all-time high this year, and B.A. classes are literally overflowing. This new record is a very encouraging factor.

Business Administration students will all agree that, from Mr. Johnson's "rough" accounting courses to the various courses in marketing, public finance, advertising, salesmanship, purchasing, business law, office management and business letter writing, as well as the standard secretarial courses (shorthand and typing), they are receiving a good sound background in their major field. They will be well equipped with an abundance of knowledge when they go out into their chosen vocation.

Although the department is presently without a chairman, expert teachers are to be found in Mrs. Sara Morgan, Mrs. Theda Nordan, and Mr. Ervin Johnson.

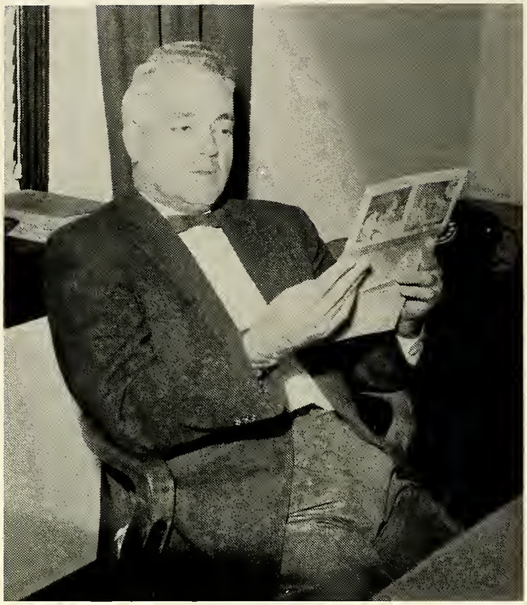
Education



DR. CHARLES L. GORMLEY
Professor and Chairman

One of the most important departments here at Alabama College is that of education which is headed by Dr. Charles L. Gormley. Dr. E. P. Lauderdale is Associate Professor, and Miss Minnie Dunn is Assistant Professor in this department.

The large number of students majoring in this field are given true-to-life experiences in the teaching field through the opportunities offered by the Laboratory School. These students are fortunate in having the opportunities of classroom observation and participation with experienced teachers to direct their student teaching assignments.

Alabama College has a co-operative arrangement with the County Board of Education that provides for the use by the Education Department of Montevallo public schools, which serve as teaching laboratories. These include a kindergarten, an elementary school, and a fully accredited high school.

From this excellent department at A. C. in this most essential field, many fine teachers are developed, thus aiding one of our nation's most crucial situations, the teacher shortage.

DR. RODNEY M. BAINE
Professor and Chairman

One does not have to be a student at Alabama College long to realize the exceptional merit of our English Department. With Dr. Rodney M. Baine as Chairman, this department is also one of the most extensive on the campus.

Other than their teaching in the basic English courses, each faculty member is a specialist in some field of literature. Miss Eloise Meroney teaches American Literature and Dr. Eva Golson teaches the Medieval Period. Literature of the Renaissance is taught by Mr. Walter Coppedge. Literature of the eighteenth and nineteenth century is Dr. Rodney Baine's specialty, and Miss Sara Puryear teaches Children's Literature as well as Spenser and Milton. Mr. William Ennis conducts a journalism class as an integral part of this department.

Whether it is poetry, journalism, one of the literatures, or drama in which a student is interested, the Alabama College English Department can supply the need with its valuable instruction.

Home Economics

One of the largest departments on campus is the School of Home Economics. Directed by Dr. Lois A. Ackerly, it includes majors in vocational education, retail economics, institutional economics and a minor in general home economics.

In addition to professional training, the students in this department acquire knowledge for the improvement of their own family living.

Covering all phases of the general course, there are classes in foods, child development, clothing, textiles, and home management. Practical experience for students in this department include the opportunity of studying children at the Nursery School, assisting in the food preparation service, and selling experience in large department stores. Other practical experience is gained in practice teaching at the local high school.

Although living in the home management house is a course in the department, it supplements and broadens the students' experience.

Faculty members include Miss Ethel Bickham, Miss Mary Larkin, Miss Mabel Owsley, Miss Sara Lightsey, and Mrs. Florence Folsom.

Foreign Languages

A. LORRAINE PIERSON
Professor and Chairman

The Department of Foreign Languages here on our campus is of vital importance to a great number of students. Since most of us, at one time or another, have contacts with this department, it is usually well-remembered by A.C. graduates.

Dr. Lorraine Pierson is the chairman of the Department of Foreign Languages. A warm and friendly person to all, she is the popular little lady that teaches both French and German courses here at Alabama College.

Miss Stockton, Associate Professor of Spanish, is a very interesting and delightful person. She keeps her students busy with vocabulary tests and oral drills, as well as holding them responsible for the translation of various articles from the "always" popular Spanish Magazine.

Since foreign students play an important part in the life of Alabama College, we North American students are able to obtain first-hand knowledge of their respective countries. These experiences, together with our studies in the various languages, enable us to learn a great deal about the historical, political, social, and economic life of our neighboring lands and sister nations.

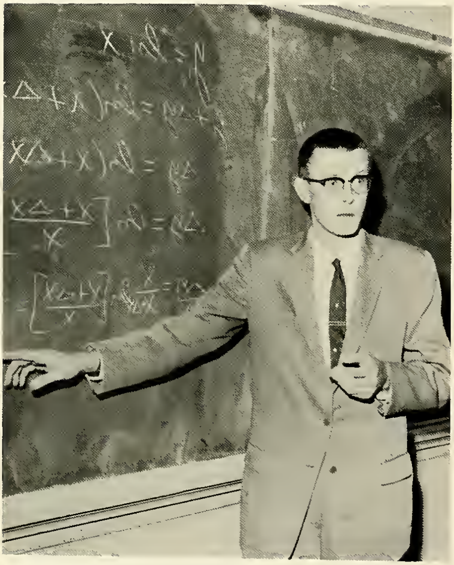
Physics and

This school year 1958-59, Alabama College has created a new department on campus by combining physics, which was formerly a part of the physical science department, with mathematics and pre-engineering. This new department, known as the Department of Physics and Mathematics, is under the leadership of Dr. D. R. McMillan, a new figure on the A. C. campus. At the beginning of this academic year, Dr. McMillan transferred here from Emory University to become chairman of this newly formed department.

DR. D. R. McMILLAN
Professor and Chairman



MR. RICHARD C. ANDERSON
Assistant Professor

The other faculty member is Mr. Richard C. Anderson, Assistant Professor. Neal Shirley acts as student assistant in this department. It is expected that additional staff will be added next year.

At the present time, there is a large number of students enrolled in the courses taught in this department. Here students are offered general courses in physics. mathematics, and pre-engineering, along with the more advanced courses in physics and mathematics.

Physical Education

DR. BERNICE FINGER
Professor and Acting Chairman

The Alabama College Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, headed by Dr. Bernice Finger, who is acting chairman, is ready at all times to meet the needs of Physical Education majors as well as those students who are non-majors.

Almost everyone has a favorite sport or physical activity in which he likes to participate. Here at A.C. we have a very wide choice of courses offered in our P.E. Department. Therefore, the needs and desires of almost every student can be filled without too much difficulty.

In addition to the courses taught, intramural sports are enjoyed the year round. These intramural tournaments are very popular among A.C. students, and they provide a great deal of satisfaction and enjoyment to fill one's spare time.

An addition to our P.E. Department is our baseball diamond. This new facility is located just across the street from A.C. Every one looks forward, with a great deal of enthusiasm and anticipation, to the spring months when we witness baseball games between our own team and those of other colleges.

Other members of the Physical Education Department staff are Mr. Floyd V. Anderson, Miss Catherine Carlson, Miss Miriam Collins, Mr. Frank Lightfoot, and Miss Geneva Myrick.

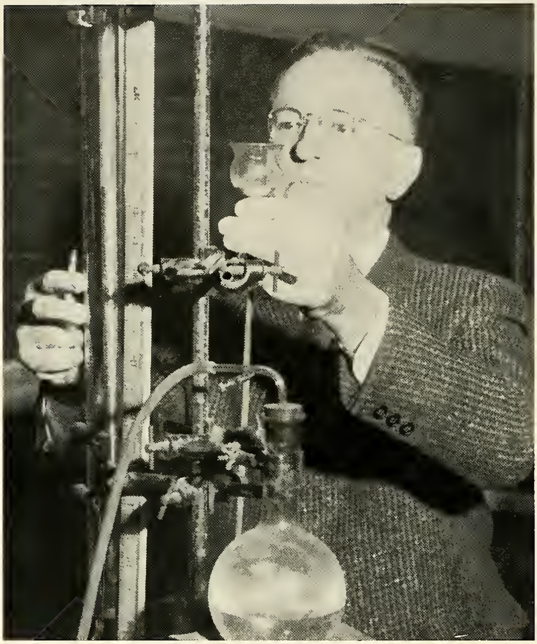
Chemistry



MR. W. J. KENNERLY
Professor and Chairman

Alabama College is taking its place in the development and extension of the science training program that is being promoted. Chemistry has become more important with the advent of the Space Age in which the world finds itself.

Graduates from Alabama College are going out to fill positions of leadership in research laboratories, medical laboratories, and general science fields throughout the country.

In this department, there are courses offered in general chemistry, as well as more advanced courses. Students planning to become medical technicians, research chemists, dieticians, and science teachers would take courses in organic chemistry, qualitative and quantitative analysis.

Mr. W. J. Kennerly is chairman of this department with Dr. Robert Reynolds as an additional professor.

Psychology

DR. KATHERINE VICKERY
Professor and Chairman

One of the basic aspects of the maturing process is the acquisition of a better understanding of oneself and of others. Alabama College has acknowledged this need by providing a wide range of choices in the field of psychology.

Both general and advanced courses are offered in the fields of general and experimental psychology, as well as in clinical, child and adolescent, personal, social, and abnormal psychology. The department maintains an up-to-date testing service located in King House.

Also in the King House are the offices of the members of this department. Dr. Katherine Vickery is chairman of the Psychology Department and staff members include Dr. Herbert Eber and Mr. Harry S. Tausch.

Correlated with classroom work, field trips offer psychology students valuable training by observing professional psychologists at work.

Whatever the student's major, he will find that taking some psychology courses will prove interesting and applicable.

Social Science

DR. JOHN B. WALTERS
Professor and Chairman

The division of Social Science is one of the largest departments on campus. Composed of a group of outstanding scholars, this department is fully equipped to provide the students of A.C. with a great deal of knowledge in the various subjects taught by its faculty members.

At the present time, Dr. John B. Walters is serving in the capacity of chief coordinator of the department. Although one of the busiest men on campus, he is always anxious to please individuals, and to take time out of his busy schedule for a chat with students or his administrative associates.

Other members of the Social Science staff are: Dr. Anne Eastman, Mr. Murray C. Flynn, Dr. Lucille Griffith, Dr. Ethel Marshall, Miss Jeanette Niven, Dr. S. E. Gerard Priestly, and Mrs. Mary Whatley. These professors, who teach various subjects ranging from history, sociology, and geography to the courses in political science, economics, and social work, are all kind and understanding individuals, and they are always willing to offer a word of advice or lend a helping hand to anyone willing to accept their invitation.

Speech

DR. LAURA F. WRIGHT
Professor and Chairman

Of all the departments on campus, none could be more important or of greater value to the individual student than the Speech Department. Since speech is a general requirement of nearly every student in attendance at Alabama College, this department is able to benefit each student in a great or even a small way.

Speech majors have the opportunity of being able to put into practice all the knowledge they have gained from their curricular study. The Speech and Hearing Clinic provides such opportunity for the speech correction major.

General speech majors have additional opportunities. Drama offers to every student the opportunity of participating in many phases of the theatre. Because of the many varied jobs, which are all so essential, every student, majors and non-majors, can be an active participant.

The Alabama College radio station is operated by the Speech Department and its students. However, many of the engineers, announcers, and program directors that we hear daily on WRSD are not speech majors. Any student desiring to do so, may take part in the activities of our own Radio Station here at A.C.

Dr. Laura F. Wright is professor and chairman of our Speech Department. In addition to the many material assets of her department, she has capable assistants in the persons of Patricia C. Coppedge, Assistant Professor; Dr. Andrew Kochman, Jr., Associate Professor; Willilee Trumbuaer, Assistant Professor; and Vivian I. Calkins Hall, the domicile of the Alabama College School of Music is a very delightful place for a person to spend some of his spare moments if he is interested in the benefits of music.

The music department offers to the non-music major, as well as to the music major, many varied opportunities for musical enjoyment. Participation in college chorale and college choir, two of the most popular organizations on campus, requires a great deal of practice and patience, but the end product is always successful.

Other performing organizations sponsored by the School of Music are the Band, the Brass Choir, the Woodwind Choir, Piano Ensembles, Chamber Music, and the Opera, all of which present various recitals and concerts on our campus.

Dr. Fraser is departmental chairman. He is assisted by very outstanding colleagues: Professors Maxine C. Davis and M. Ziolkowski; Associate Professors Elizabeth J. Armstrong, Katherine Farrah, John T. Fesperman, Betty L. Lumby, and Bruce Tolbert; Assistant Professor Ina L. Strom, and Teaching Assistant John Gay.

To develop well-rounded citizens, Alabama College must do more than stimulate the intellect of its students to absorb knowledge. Being an informed citizen has put increasing demands on the American populace. No longer can one expect to learn the intricacies of a governing body by merely reading accounts of their actions. More and more today it is important that the future leaders of our nation learn by experience the problems involved in governing.

To this end, Alabama College has an effective Student Government Association. The organization of the National government is reproduced on our campus in the functioning of the Executive Council, the Student Court, the Student Senate and the auxiliary organizations. This highly developed group sets the pace at the College to which the Students adhere. It has increased in esteem by adapting to the rapidly changing environment on the campus.

Three important publications are developed by Alabama College students. Our yearbook, the Montage, provides a pictorial and verbal view of the year with its many people, phases and activities.

The Alabamian presents up-to-date news of current happenings. It keeps the students aware of all events—past, present, and future.

The literary works of the students are contained in The Tower. This magazine offers encouragement for the best literary effort one can put forth.

The S.G.A. and publications give opportunities for students to develop leadership and co-operative qualities—thereby becoming more enlightened.

Neal Shirley, President

Student Government

The Student Government Association, in the words of its president, "is a proven organization" on the campus of Alabama College.

Working under its first male president, the Student Government exerts its influence for the benefit of the student body.

The honor code, under which all A.C. students work and play, is part of the model Student Government. All student authority is exercised in three branches of the SGA—executive, legislative and judicial.

In the March elections, fellow students choose leaders whose daily life exemplifies the dependable and responsible qualities necessary to fulfill the standards of a working democracy.

Darrol Pharris, Jane Graham, Janice Wood, Christiane Angele, Roy Hilton, Harvey Fleming

The Executive Council

The Executive branch of the SGA is responsible for enforcing the Honor Code and student regulations.

Composed of the top organizational leaders on campus, the "Exec" Council functions as a co-ordinator for all campus activities. The Student Government is only as good as its leaders —the Executive Council.

STUDENT COURTS

Any infraction of College rules set up by either Student Government or Administration will be handled by the courts.

Three court bodies function on the campus. The Women's Court and the Men's Court hear cases involving the breaking of social regulations of their respective jurisdiction. The Joint Court, consisting of representatives from each of the lower courts, considers cases of major significance.

Students serving on the courts must stand as examples of the Honor Code. Their task is a grave and complicated one. An administrative-faculty committee works with the court in rendering its decisions.

Student Senate

Legislation at Alabama College is conducted by the Student Senate. New laws and amendments governing the present needs of the students must be passed by the Senate. Other activities of the Senate include keeping the national flag on the quadrangle and the Purple and Gold convocation flags.

Student Christian Association

The Student Christian Association is a student organization designed to foster religious activities on campus. Vespers, an inter-denominational period held each week, is one of the main projects of this group. The Student Christian Association also helps in organizing church receptions for the freshmen.

Ramona Hall, Ann Nabors, Karen Mullins, Ann Ratliff, Barbara Lett, Amalia Eppes

Religious Council

The Religious Council, composed of students from all denominational groups, works to promote a closer relationship between students and their selected churches.

Religious Emphasis Week is their chief activity. Dr. Jack S. Boozer of Emory University was the convocation speaker for the week this year.

Margaret Tait, Rosalie Hart, Mary Gene Fleming, Harvey Fleming, Station Manager; Jo Anne Mynard, Lena Hewston Cook, Mary Ellen Grant

Radio Board

"This is WRSD, the voice of Alabama College." The Radio Board is composed of the people chiefly responsible for bringing students "the voice of Alabama College."

Not only is WRSD an asset for students in bringing good music and up-to-date news, but also an asset for them in providing training and experience in radio production, directing, script writing, and performance.

Recreation Association

Organizing recreational activities is the chief project of the Recreation Association. An intramural sports program for both men and women is always on the calendar. The group also furnishes life guards at the swimming pool and the lake. Each dormitory has a representative to the board. Campus tournaments are also fostered by the "Rec." Association.

Social Committee

"Let's have a party"—and the Social Committee goes to work. The Social Chairman, elected along with other Student Government Officers, and the dormitory social chairmen make up this committee. They are responsible for informal dances in Napier and Tut, coffees after concerts and plays, and all other SGA-sponsored recreation outings. Their big task is the SGA formal dance in March.

The voice of student opinion is the Alabamian, student newspaper. The Alabamian covers all phases of the newspaper field—reporting, headline writing, photography, advertising, make-up, typing, circulation, and proofreading.

Established in 1923, the Alabamian is a bi-monthly paper. Special editions of the Alabamian came out for Elite Night and College Night.

The Alabamian is a member of the Associated Collegiate Press. It is submitted to this group and to the Pi Delta Epsilon national convention at Cornell University for a national rating.

A vital part of any college, certain activities are important in the enlightenment of the students. They provide an atmosphere for observing and learning as well as for active participation on the students' part. The activities lend color and variety and become an outlet for the expression of talent.

Alabama College sponsors lecturers and performers who share the richness of their abilities and knowledge with the students.

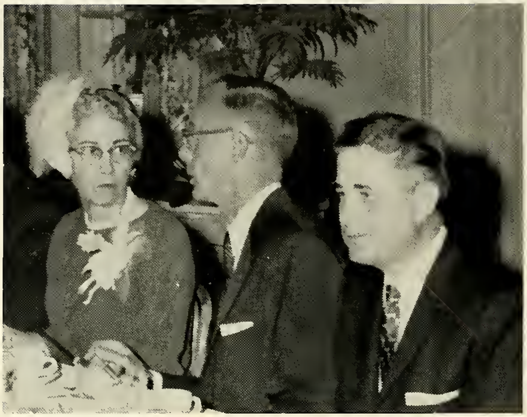
The College Theatre offers opportunity for students to participate in the many activities connected with a stage production.

A highlight of the year was the inauguration of Dr. Howard M. Phillips as Eighth President of Alabama College. Many prominent educators and dignitaries were present for the October fourteenth occasion.

Dances on the campus call forth the creativity and ingenuity of the students. Three formal dances are held annually and there are occasional informal dances.

Certain traditions have become embedded in the structure of activities. These traditions promote spirit and a feeling of unity for the students as well as being entertaining.

Because they represent another facet of enlightenment, activities on a college campus are vital. Not only are they a cultural aspect, but also they are a concerted effort of the people on the campus toward a determined goal.



Mrs. Howard Phillips, Mr. Ralph Sears, Dr. Howard Phillips

About 150 official delegates and representatives of educational institutions and learned societies attended the day-long inaugural activities. They attended a luncheon honoring Dr. Phillips. The academic procession included the delegates, representatives, Alabama College faculty, Seniors of 1959 and the Presidential Party. The reception following the ceremony climaxed the day's activities.

Alabama College gained its eighth president on October 14. Dr. Howard Mitchell Phillips came to the campus from Emory University where he served as Dean of the Graduate School. Dr. Phillips holds degrees from Wake Forest College and the University of Virginia.

Four nationally prominent scientists and social scientists conducted a symposium as part of the inaugural activities honoring Dr. Howard Mitchell Phillips. The speakers discussed "Implications of the Atomic and Space Age for the Next Half Century."

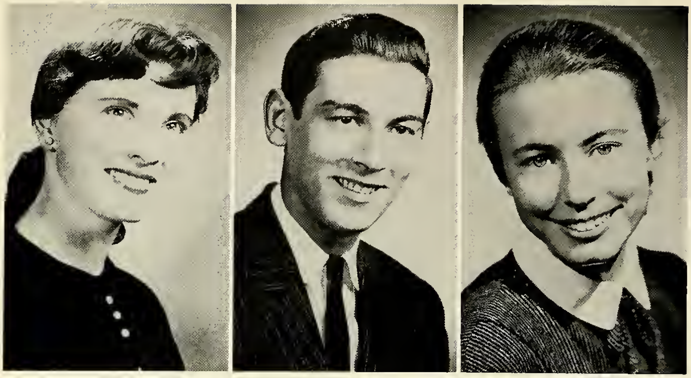
Concert-Lecture Series



Players Incorporated presented "Twelfth Night"

Alabama College sponsors a Concert-Lecture Series which features distinguished artists. Among these artists are singers, dancers, musicians, actors and lecturers. In the 1958-59 Series were such outstanding groups as Players Incorporated with "Twelfth Night"; the Birmingham Symphony Orchestra with Metropolitan Opera soloist, Phyllis Curtin; and Varel and Bailly in "Les Chanteurs de Paris." Theodore Ullman, pianist, and the Village Players with "The Four Poster" also entertained during this year, with another highlight of the Series being the Dance Drama Company.

The College Theatre is a vital part of the Speech Department, serving as a practical application of the theatre arts. It offers students an opportunity to use their knowledge in the various fields of the theatre: lighting, scenery, acting, make-up and costume as well as the business part of the program.

Three plays were produced this year varying from comedy to heavy drama. Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler"; "The Way of the World" by Congreve; and O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms." The College Theatre presents as varied productions as possible by including scripts of different periods, countries, and types. It's aim is to develop the abilities of as many students as possible.

The Free Theatre is an all-student laboratory group and augments the College Theatre program. It is the hope of the Speech Department that the Free Theatre in Reynolds Hall will look to the future through experimentation by encouraging playwriting and by providing complete training for the future teacher who will direct school dramatic programs. This program is directed by Speech and Dramatics majors and any student who has unusual ability and interest. All students are eligible for non-directing participation.

Drives Week

Drives Week is a campus-wide event to raise money for donations to charities. Parades, skit night, the student-faculty basketball game, and the Sadie Hawkins dance were some of the activities of the week. Small fees were charged for all events. Highlighting the activities was Suppressed Desires Day, when students did whatever they desired—for a price. Students vote on their favorite charity, and the money goes to the three highest ones.

Freshman Traditions

The Phillips entertain at Christmas

Tradition is a part of any college life. Pride in the college is built upon the foundation of its predecessors. This year "Freshman Traditions" became a regular part of the orientation program. Its purpose is to create a closeness between freshmen and upperclassmen.

It was not much fun for the freshmen to recite the handbook, to always wear their rat caps, to practice the "courtesies" by knocking before entering, and by addressing all upperclassmen as "Sir" and "Madam." But, oh! what a joy next year!

Crook Day

The Crook symbolizes the final round of College life—the all-important senior year! In the spring of each year, the graduating seniors test the juniors to see if they are ready to assume the role of seniors. The sacred crook is taken from the glass case and hidden somewhere on the campus. When the juniors find the secretly hidden crook, they have "arrived." The day ends with the bestowal of caps and gowns at Crook Court.

Congratulations to Mimi, who found the Crook

"We are not amused"

Senior March

Marching is a privilege granted only to the "most honored." In the wee hours of the night, the seniors exert their authority by visiting the dorms of all underclassmen. These "lowlies" must present an impromptu skit to entertain the seniors. "Rise in the presence of a cap and gown," sends a chill down the spine of even the bravest underclassmen who must grant the wishes of the seniors.

Honors Day

Honors Day is the day chosen to recognize scholarship and scholastic ability of Alabama College students. The honorary societies on the campus sponsor this event, and their members are recognized at the special convocation. Students with averages of 2.4 and above are given special recognition during the program. Several awards are presented to outstanding students at this time.

Citizenship Day

Citizenship Day marks a beginning and an end for the seniors. Each spring the graduating class takes the Citizenship Oath. As they pledge themselves, they are reminded of their obligation as a citizen in a democracy. The faculty also takes this occasion to honor the seniors.

Keeping physically able to utilize knowledge is an important factor to any person. Strength, co-ordination, and good health are required in the all-round assimilation of knowledge. As knowledge is part skill and part co-ordination of physical and mental factors, adeptness becomes a more vital factor in fourfold development.

A sports program should be diversified to the extent that its scope includes everyone. It should fit the needs and develop the latent abilities of each individual student.

The sports and recreational program at Alabama College is adaptable to the requirements of the person. From the serene fisherman at the College Lake, to the energetic football player, provision is made for all students. Some of the facilities include canoes at the lake, a modern indoor swimming pool, tennis courts, archery range, baseball field, and a regulation golf course. Hiking and horseback riding are also favorite pastimes of Alabama College people.

The Alabama College baseball team participated in intercollegiate sports last spring, lending to the spirit of athletics on the campus.

Whether the person is highly skilled in a sport or seeking relaxation, he is adequately provided for by the recreational program. Clubs and organizations are organized to promote recreation for everyone, thus adding another facet to their development as well-rounded citizens.

The 1958-59 intramural basketball season at A.C. was a very successful one. This season was climaxed with Napier 3rd West winning the championship. With this show of enthusiasm on the part of the men students, there is hope of a future intercollegiate basketball program at Alabama College.

The 1958 baseball team put Alabama College into the intercollegiate sports picture for the first time in the history of the school. A spirit of good sportsmanship prevailed in all the games played. Coach Frank Lightfoot used the material available to its best advantage in producing the first baseball team on the Alabama College campus. The spirit of the team and supporters alike increased with the addition of a new baseball diamond and a triumph over Jacksonville State. Using the knowledge and experience they gained during the preceding season, the Alabama College baseball team hopes to improve its record and to develop this intercollegiate sport more extensively this coming spring.

Their participation in activities seems to characterize the students on a college campus. Clubs and organizations are a vital means whereby a student may become a part of college life. Not only do they serve his creative interests, but also help him develop certain character traits.

The ability to lead is becoming more demanding as the society becomes more complex. Opportunities for good leaders are ever present.

But good leaders need good followers and followers are important constituents of any organized group.

Alabama College organizations take the form of honorary societies, and departmental and service clubs.

The people belonging to these groups gain proficiency in planning and directing their activities toward a common goal. A spirit co-operation becomes a vital factor in reaching these goals.

In the meetings, correct parliamentary procedure can be learned and practiced, making for a more well-mannered and thoughtful person.

Clubs and organizations stimulate their members to create and to learn as well as to enjoy the associations with other people.

Alabama College is proud of the clubs and organizations on its campus. The enlightenment gained through participation in these groups cannot be attained in any other phase of college life.

Throughout civilization many of the prominent people have been recognized. Their lives, deeds, and the results compose what we know as history. Of course, many people never become renowned, even though their contribution to living may be great. Nevertheless, mankind has attempted to attribute praise where praise is deserved. The aspiration toward recognition, no matter how modest, is often an incentive for people to exert their best effort. To this end, the desire for recognition can be considered enlightening; it may result in self-realization and a philosophy for life and living.

Because of their congeniality, personality, beauty, intellectual ability, and contribution to Alabama College, certain people have been chosen to be featured.

The Elite consists of a prominent person from each of the fourteen departments and schools on campus as selected by the students.

The six beauties were chosen from the fifteen finalists by Gary Moore and were formally presented at the Christmas Dance.

Two Favorites from each class were elected on the basis of their congenial personality and popularity among the students.

Miss Alabama College exemplifies the spirit of the college by her beauty, charm, and personality. She represents the epitome of attainment during her college life.

These people demonstrate enlightenment as shown by their being chosen as a representative product of Alabama College.

HISTORY OF COLLEGE NIGHT

College Night was begun by the flapper girls of 1920. It has evolved from an annual stunt night held in the dining room to honor George Washington's birthday to the elaborate production of 1959.

The opening of Ramsay Hall added excitement to the 1925 College Night. The presentations grew until they were soon moved to Reynolds Hall. It, too, became too small and in 1930, College Night was moved to Palmer Hall.

Attendance grew so that in 1932 plans were made for a two-night performance. Tickets at this time were twenty-five cents and ten cents. The judges based their decision on originality, presentation, number of people, audience response and appropriateness.

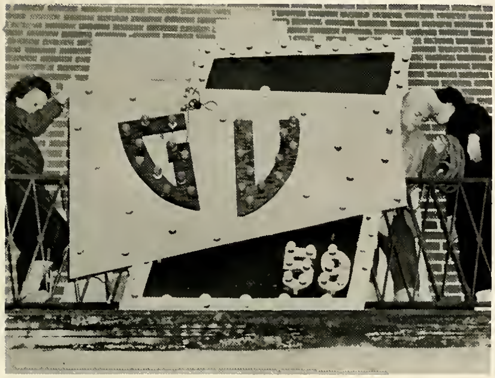
College Night continued during the war years with each side giving two productions, a comedy and a drama. Pep songs were begun this time.

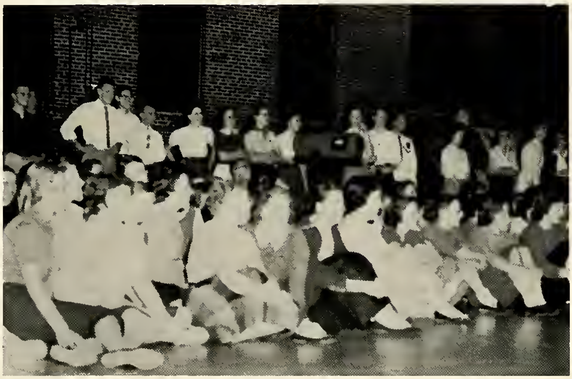
College Night, 1959, looks back on 39 years of tradition. Now there are three performances, lighted signs for the dormitories, and audiences from all over the United States.

Creativeness, enthusiasm, secrecy, competition, and suspense are the elements of College Night spirit. Alabama College students are proud to be able to carry on the tradition of College Night.

Purple-Gold Signs

Creativeness, pep, patience and enthusiasm are needed in the process of making a sign which will top that of the opposing side. Each side makes two lighted signs which are hung on the dorms for judging.





Purple-Gold Party

Each side works for the largest attendance at the Purple-Gold Party because this will give them a point toward a "P.V. or a G.V." The Golds were the winners of the 1959 Purple-Gold Party.

"The Right or Left of In Be Tween" or "The Undivine Comedy"

"The Right or Left or N. B. Tween" had the elements for a real Golden Victory, 1959.

The story involved the soul of N. B. Tween who had been killed in an accident. Mr. Tween had been neither good enough for heaven nor bad enough for hell. It was the duty of the Eternal Conductor to place Mr. Tween, but his attempts to do so were futile. Saint Peter finally called a general assembly from the two realms to decide Tween's fate. N. B. Tween was bequeathed to the overworked Eternal Conductor as an assistant.

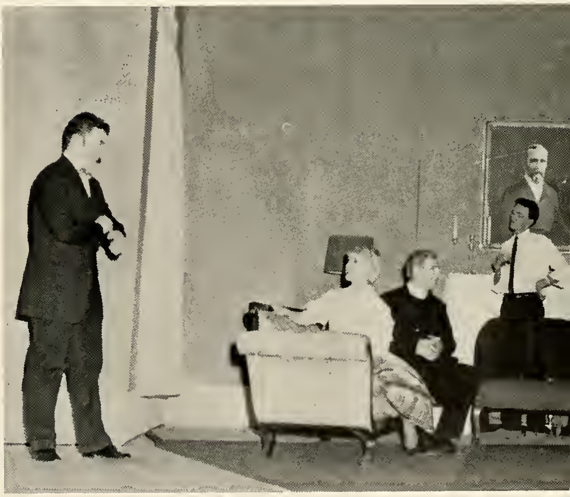
"The Man in the Red Flannel Suit"

Emily's black magic brought results when she conjured up a devil, or as the Purples called him, "The Man In The Red Flannel Suit." Emily, a housekeeper, dressed the devil in ordinary clothes and disguised him as her cousin after he had threatened to put a hex on her. He was readily accepted by Emily's employer, although no one could understand his extraordinary perception. His original idea that all the world was corrupt changed with the kindness he received during his stay on earth. Although he was conjured back to hell, Nicholas P. Devil was relieved of his job and came back to earth as an ordinary man.



Dedication
of 1959 College Night

College Night, 1959, was dedicated to Mrs. Willilee Trumbauer, assistant professor of speech.

In the words of Neal Shirley, President of Student Government, "It seems appropriate to dedicate the 1959 College Night to someone so dedicated to College Night. Her guidance and willingness to lend students a helping hand has served as an inspiration to all of us."

Mrs. Traumbauer has taught at Alabama College since 1926 and has been assistant director of the College Theater since 1944.

One of the most important aspects of college life is the friendships made on campus. Many of these associations endure through ensuing years, and many may develop into lifetime partnerships. Meeting the people on campus gives an appreciation of their interests and talents —an enlightenment in itself. Tolerance and co-operation are virtues learned through repeated association with classmates and those living in the dormitory.

Students come and go on a college campus, yet each leaves a part of himself when he goes for others to see and follow his example. The students set the traditions at college, and they are the means whereby the heritage is made richer.

The people pictured here are our Alabama College acquaintances with whom we live, work, and play for four years. We grow to know their interests, tastes, habits and some of their personal life as we meet them daily. They are our campus leaders and the followers; the Purples and Golds; upperclassmen and "rat-capped" freshmen.

Enlightenment comes when each student can realize that every other student is a distinct personality with his own traits, appearance, and temperament. As he learns to appreciate that student as a separate personality, then he becomes more enlightened.

HOUSEMOTHER, Mrs. Nora S. Lewis

"Tutwiler at last!" These are the happy words of every Senior girl; for when they begin their residence in this popular dorm, they realize that graduation is not too many months away.

As Graduation Day approaches and the Senior reign is almost ended, each happy girl thinks back over her four years at A. C., and the many wonderful times she has had.

Life in Tutwiler has been superb, and Mrs. Lewis, the Senior housemother, has been such an inspiration and a loving mother to all her girls.

Then, the important day in May arrives; the most honorable Seniors don their caps and gowns, and proceed down the aisles of Palmer Auditorium for the last time; leaving behind many wonderful friends and many happy memories, but going forward with the remembrance of these loved ones and these memorable occasions. With sheepskin in hand, the Seniors bid farewell to A. C. and say hello to the world outside.

Junior Class

Vice-President, June Capell; Secretary, Peggy Ratliff; Treasurer, Peggy Thompson.

HOUSEMOTHER, Mrs. Mayme Barlow Coble

The only thing that could possibly excel the joy of being a Junior is being a Senior, and that step is the next one for the jolly third-year class.

Ramsay Hall, with its pretty white columns and lovely parlors, is a haven filled with happy girls; for in this popular dorm, some of the most memorable occasions of a college career take place for A. C. coeds.

Mrs. Coble, the housemother of Ramsay, is "cute as pie," and she is truly a wonderful guide and influence in the lives of her girls.

As the Juniors leave Ramsay during the last days of May, they leave with much disappointment, for their single year spent in Ramsay has been so worthwhile and has brought them so many wonderful experiences and memories. Although they are thrilled over the thought of being Seniors at last, they will always look back on their Junior year, Ramsay Hall, and Mrs. Coble; and remember them with a great deal of pride and pleasure.

HOUSEMOTHER, Mrs. Willabelle Posey

“At last we are out of Main and finally on back campus; and to think we can stay up after twelve o’clock at night.” These are only a few of the happy thoughts that enter the minds of Sophomore girls as they move bag and baggage into Hanson Hall.

The Sophomore year is a very important one; for this first big step toward becoming a Senior provides many social responsibilities and obligations together with the responsibility of studying and of making that definite decision as to what field to major in.

Being a Sophomore also provides the pleasure of having Mrs. Posey for a housemother. A very cordial person, Mrs. Posey is always ready to be of service to her girls.

This second year in college is truly a wonderful one, and can mean so much to a person if he or she will only permit it to do so.

Freshman Class

Vice-President, James Kendrick; Secretary, Sue Dabbs; Treasurer, Madge Barnard

HOUSEMOTHER: Mrs. Mary M. Egerton

One of the most exciting years of an individual's college life is his first year, that of being a Freshman. This first whole year away from home is, in reality, the beginning of a new life. It includes the fun of making new friends, learning many rules and regulations, and buying impressive looking textbooks. Moreover, it means the creation of a new home, a home away from home.

The freshman women students here at A.C. make their new home in Main Hall, a domicile that has housed many girls throughout the years. Enhanced by its lovely white columns, Main Hall is significant of many happy hours in the lives of A.C. coeds. The wisteria trailing over the front of the building makes it a focal point on the campus.

Serving as housemother in Main Hall is Mrs. Mary M. Egerton, a very charming and capable personality. Her job is an important one, for she must guide and counsel several hundred girls, some of whom are away from home for the very first time.

It is evident that none of the girls will ever forget Main Hall and the many happy memories that they have shared while residing within her lovely old brick walls.

Napier Hall, a very modern and beautifully designed building, is the home of the men students enrolled at Alabama College. Situated just beyond the front gate of our campus, and facing Mail Hall, Napier Hall is also the home of two well-loved individuals; Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Hood.

Mr. Hood is a retired member of our faculty, and Mrs. Hood, his attractive wife, is responsible for the operation and maintenance of our supply store, more commonly known as "The Tea House." This interesting couple are known as the "Mom and Dad" of our men students, for together, they serve as house directors of Napier Hall. Mr. and Mrs. Hood always welcome the opportunity to converse with the members of their household, whether it may be for just a friendly little chat or to help solve a problem.

CANDID SHOTS

Life at college is not just classes and homework, club and organization work, parties and dances. These are some of the components of college life. But some of the things that are most remembered are the little things which may seem insignificant at the time.

Living in the dormitory is an exciting experience if one stops to think about it. The little "get-togethers" over coffee at night; friends dropping in during the day; birthday parties; and "talk sessions" make memories of dormitory life treasured throughout the years.

As in a play, the audience does not see everything that occurs. There are workers and actions going on behind the scenes of the play. People cannot possibly know everything that happens on the campus of Alabama College. This book has shown how four-fold development is achieved here.

In this section, however, are some pictures of "behind the scenes" activities—some no one would ever see otherwise. These candid shots depict the more informal side of living on the campus of Alabama College. It is a happy and rewarding existence and one the seniors often regret to leave. However, the intimate association with friends provides memories for all the students to carry with them.

Omar Khayyam has said, "The moving finger writes; and having writ, moves on."

The 1959 Senior Class have written their final chapter in the history of Alabama College. They move out into a world of challenge, of responsibility, of vast opportunities, and of success and failure. They can make of themselves whatever they want to be. The world provides an environment which these graduates must use to reach the goals they set for themselves.

Theirs to meet is the challenge; theirs to accept is the responsibility; theirs to make is success or failure. The education of these Seniors is a tool for attaining the goal and for facing world conditions.

The world these people face is an exacting one—it requires the best they have to give. The demands are often strenuous. Because future success calls for maturity, Alabama College provides an environment for growth of its students. Not only physically do they grow, but mentally, spiritually and emotionally as well.

The 1959 MONTAGE has given a pictorial history of this year at Alabama College. It shows students as they strive toward a four-fold development. This development has been called Enlightenment; and this yearbook pictures life at Alabama College in terms of this enlightenment.

As the 1959 Seniors depart they hear the words:

"When you walk through a storm
Hold your head up high
And don't be afraid of the dark.
At the end of the storm
Is a golden sky
And the sweet silver song of a lark.
Walk on, through the wind
Walk on, through the rain
Walk on, and you'll never walk alone.

Alma Mater ever glorious
Seeking Right and Freedom's way,
Raise a beacon high to guide us;
Shed thy light afar, we pray.

Sons and daughters sing thy praises;
Steadfast virtues win thee fame,
May the years be rich and fruitful,
Truth and Honor crown thy name.

Editor's Note

Another year has gone by, and another yearbook has been published. Each year a new editor takes over with big plans. Ours were great ones—we wanted to produce the best book ever published at Alabama College. Although we had our share of troubles, we had a staff who did a lot of work, and we had a lot of fun together. Finally, after too small a budget, broken appointments, pictures retaken, and deadlines missed, the book was finished, and we could take heart again.

We hope you like the 1959 MONTAGE; it is your story—the story of you and Alabama College, 1959.

We, the Class of

'62,

Remember

The Tea House

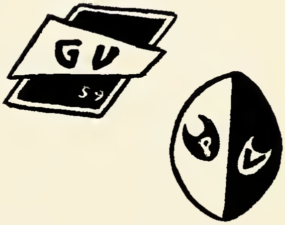
Ole Comer Hall, the Tea House too,
All of this is part of you,
These are the moments we'll remember.
The Harvest Dance, the Beauty Ball,
College Night for one and all,
These are the moments we'll remember.
Tho' summer turns to winter
And Stop Day disappears,
The laughter we are glad to share
Will echo through the years.
When Senior nights and Junior days
Find us gone from Sophomore ways,
These are the moments we'll remember.



Flower Hill, the Tower tall,
Hanson dorm and Napier hall,
These hold the moments we'll remember.
The college lake, the bonfire fun,
The walks to class, the P.O. run,
These are the moments we'll remember.
Tho' Sophomore turns to Junior
Then Seniors we'll soon be
We look back then to Sophomore days
While we were at A.C.
When other years may pass away
They'll say we Sophomores had our day.
These are the moments we'll remember.
